The action of the Mexican students at Technology in forming a promising club again stimulates the claim of such institutions for a place in our life at the Institute.

Two years ago the British Empire Association took the initiative in this field, and organized a club which is today in a most flourishing condition.

Not enough men realize the real importance of the social side of college life to take proper advantage of it. One always hears that the friends and acquaintances made at college are among the most desirable features of a higher education.

The very fact that the social life here does not approach that of other colleges is the more reason why the students should embrace the opportunities that are offered.

Probably few Technology men know the circumstances connected with the founding of the Lowell Institute, which has become so well known in London by students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Entered as second-class matter October 6, 1889, at the post office at Boston, Mass., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.
