HOLLIS STREET THEATRE
Maud Adams will enter upon her final week in Boston at the Hollis Street Theatre on this evening. The success of "Peter Pan" continues as great as ever, and it is on account of this New York engagement which had been booked for the holiday season that we are cutting short of the season here. It will prove eight weeks of record breaking prosperity.

COLONIAL THEATRE
Elsie Janis and "The Vanderbilt Cup" will be a double attraction at the Colonial Theatre next week, and it will be strange indeed if this does not prove the same success that it did in New York last winter. Boston always liked Miss Janis when she was a child minx, and her imitations of the sages of the stage are famous.

PARK THEATRE
Lawrence D'Orsay has been splendidly received in Boston with the new comedy "The Embassy Ball," and it is universally admitted that this is the brightest of all the works from the pen of Augustus Thomas. Mr. D'Orsay is seen in a most cogentual character and the supporting company is especially strong for a facile society play like the New York success. This week will be the last here.

TREMONT THEATRE
Only one week more of the engagement of "The College Widow" remains in which theatre the new comedy "The Embassy Ball," and it is universally admitted that this is the brightest of all the works from the pen of Augustus Thomas. Mr. D'Orsay is seen in a most cogentual character and the supporting company is especially strong for a facile society play like the New York success. This week will be the last here.
