1900 Class Meeting.

At a meeting of the Freshman Class in Huntington Hall Monday, P. R. Avery was elected manager of the class baseball team. A number of teams have written for games, and their players are now waiting at the Cage, so a complete schedule can easily be arranged. President Fitzwater announced that T. W. Saul and B. Reynolds had been elected to serve with himself and representatives of the Freshman Class on the Institute Committee. This committee holds a very important place this year because of several new responsibilities, especially the management of the Saturday Night Kominers, which now devolves upon it. A motion was passed authorizing the Class President to appoint a committee to take charge of the 1910 Class Kominers, which do not come under jurisdiction of the Institute Committee. Fitzwater appointed R. F. Goodwin with the class representatives on the Institute Committee. This committee will hold an important place this year because of several new responsibilities, especially the management of the Saturday Night Cotrell, which now devolves upon it.

DISSERT OF THE 1905 CLUB.

Fifteen men attended the dinner of the Boston Club of 1905 last evening at the Technology Club. This was the second regular monthly dinner of the club and was managed by Mr. G. B. Perkins. Its informality made the occasion especially enjoyable and some of the impromptu speeches and stories were extremely amusing. The toastmaster, Mr. W. A. Clark, was elected as the Class Day Committee.

That "Collegy" Touch

You know there's something about the style of the well-dressed college man's clothing that distinguishes him from the crowd. This "collegy" touch of distinction is only possessed by clothing made by first class houses who specialize in the production of college men's clothing. It's the especial mark of college men's clothing made by the well-known firm of
