ment of the authorities at the Institute, on the work of construction. To show the economy of construction, it is stated that the work on Tech Field in its present conditions has cost the Corporation about $6,000.

When interviewed last evening, Mr. Mahan would give no statement as to reasons, saying only: "I am extremely sorry that I have to take such a step, but circumstances have arisen such that other action is impossible. I have become a Tech man in spirit, can handle and understand Tech men, and it will be hard for me to leave so many good friends." He answered in a declined negative when asked whether he would reconsider his action.

From a man closely connected with the Institute corporation it was learned that the real trouble was over money matters, the trouble being between the Advisory Board and Mr. Mahan. It seems that the Executive Committee of the Corporation voted last full a sum of money to be used as an increase in Mr. Mahan's salary in recognition of his services in athletics. He was receiving under contract a fair salary, not commensurate with his position or the salaries received by coaches at other schools.

As soon as this money was received from the Executive Committee, certain members of the body wished to cut Mr. Mahan's salary. Mr. Mahan resigned immediately, but upon promise of the full salary, returned to the position. The Advisory Council then gave the money out regularly until it secured control of the money to do as it wishes with it, while from a statement from the Executive Committee through President Fitchett. Mr. Mahan holds that the money was given for the express purpose of increasing his salary for the school year.
