FOR THE FRESHMEN.

For the benefit of the Class of 1911, THE TECH, Volume 27, takes the liberty of clipping the following from THE NEW YORK GLOBE, October 22.

"Once more The Lounger takes his typewriter (another gender) in his log and proceeds to spread over the immense panorama the drop of ink which makes millions think. Once more the roulette of the Tech man has spun round and stopped over the space marked "Work." Once more the Institute is invited with the usual quota of frontier. To them, his protectors, The Lounger extends his right hand. It will be hard for the average tenderfoot to realize that he is no longer a senior of the Centreville High School, and chairman of the Committee to Select a Class Flower. If he has used up all the familiar vein of the general subject, the subject list, the tall slips, and all the other registration stuff he probably knows what a great and wonderful thing Tech is. There is much, however, that cannot be learned from the official literature, and it is on that account that The Lounger unloads with the key of generosity the treasury of all his wide experiences and all his hard shower over the fortunate Freshman following the same suggestions:

"There are six marks given on the five weekly reports. They are C, P, E, P, PE, and 2, and signify as follows:
C - Cleared,
P - Passed,
P - Passed, you have done noble,
P - Passed, you have done good,
P - Passed, you have done fair, and
2 - Do not hurry. Roma was not built in a day.
"The fanciful machinery is made up of two elements, professors and students. The professors are a small body of men entirely surrounded by knowledge. In some cases, this is bounded on the north by a piece of chalk, on the east by a blackboard, on the south by a textbook, and on the west by the institute. So the students have learned, and the whole object is divided into two classes—those that do and those that don't.

"Freehand Drawing is a Freshman class in the Adams House. All courses, 25 cents per plate."

All accounts with the Book Exchange must be closed before Oct. 25.
