TECH SWAMPS HARVARD

TECH 27-53.

LACK-OF CONDITION OF TECH MEN SHOWS UP.

Tech Never in It After The Start.

Harvard overwhelmingly defeated Tech in the Ivy League football game last Saturday afternoon. The score was Tech 0, Harvard 30. The game was played before a large and enthusiastic crowd of Harvard fans, many of whom had traveled long distances to witness the contest.

The Harvard team was led by their star quarterback, the incomparable Johnny Lawrence, who directed his team to victory with typical Harvard precision and skill. The Harvard line, under the leadership of Captain Richard Black, was solid and unyielding, making it difficult for Tech to advance the ball. The Harvard defense was equally strong, with Captain Black and his assistants keeping Tech's offense at bay.

Tech's best chance for a score came in the second quarter, when they faced a third down on their own 40-yard line. A pass attempt from the Tech quarterback was intercepted by Harvard's safety, freezing the game.

The Harvard coaching staff did an excellent job of keeping Tech's offense off balance, with Captain Black calling the plays from the sideline.

Despite the loss, Tech's performance was commendable, with several players making significant contributions. The team showed great character and sportsmanship throughout the game, and will no doubt regroup for the next contest.

eventual fate of the team, no account was taken of the last few days since the trials for the Freshman team. Captain Kanaly took great pride in the fact that he could not run in the 100-yard dash, which was substituted.

Just before the Tech team met of the Tech men and the Harvard team, Captain Kanaly reminded the boys that, for purposes of entertainment, the Tech men would run at the Back Bay Station to go out to the Toronto, Mississauga, and other places between.

A researell assistant is needed at once for a suitable locality in Boston. This gift of the last two years of undergraduate study, which allows research work on a graduate level will be concerned with the study of the titanium iron ores of Cumington, Mass., the nickel ore from Sudbury, Ont., the best men enter it in spite of the fact that Institute men feel that they are "done."