when two extra periods were played to decide the game.

At the sound of the whistle Holy Cross began the scoring, but Tech soon pulled together, and by good team work evened up the score, and began to pile up a good lead. The half ended 20 to 6 in Tech's favor. The second half was more hotly contested than the first, and the individual work of the Holy Cross players in dodging and passing was remarkable.

TECH HOLY CROSS

Mr. Clafin described in detail the process of tanning leather by the so-called "chrome" process which, first discovered in Germany, was improved in this country and made a success.
