In the Circulation Department.

The circulation department is responsible for managing the distribution of newspapers, magazines, and other publications. They ensure that these publications are delivered to the correct locations and that the right number of copies are produced. This department is crucial for the operation of many businesses and organizations, as it helps them stay connected with their audience and maintain their readership. The circulation department is often responsible for handling subscriptions, renewals, and other customer service inquiries. They may also work closely with advertising and sales teams to promote publications and increase revenue. Overall, the circulation department plays a vital role in the success of many businesses in the media and marketing industries.