THE TECH

Published every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday by the students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

OF THE TECH

The one time of exercise, you are able to learn this habit. It is the individual work with the individual man, not the collective work with the collective man. A man who has never been in the habit of exercising early in the morning, or who has never been in the habit of doing anything at all, is less than he should be.

The Editor of The Tech:

in less than two weeks, I have seen the same students who were in the habit of staying up late at night, who were in the habit of sleeping late, and who were in the habit of doing nothing at all, are now in the habit of getting up early, of doing exercise in the morning, and of doing something useful all day long.

To the Editor of The Tech:

in less than two weeks, I have seen the same students who were in the habit of staying up late at night, who were in the habit of sleeping late, and who were in the habit of doing nothing at all, are now in the habit of getting up early, of doing exercise in the morning, and of doing something useful all day long.

MANY APPLICATIONS RECEIVED

Tomorrow is the last day applications will be received for seats for the Boston performance of the show. There are already applications in for about 1200 tickets, and those who wish to obtain seats must apply now.

The year of applications marks the beginning of the hardest work for the box office. The students are pretty well drilled, and the principals too. They have got their lines down. The students are expected to show Saturday at 9 o'clock.

The world of commerce is much in demand.
