COAST CHART WORK
Instructor Williams Speaks on Government Survey and Map System

A. R. Cullimore 1909, instructor in surveying, gave an interesting talk on hydrographic surveying to the Civil Engineering Society in 11 B, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Cullimore's talk was especially valuable for those men who had not studied what work they would go up to take after graduating. He described in detail the making of the coast charts used in navigation and the planning of engineering structures built on the coast and banks of rivers and lakes.

The surveying party usually consists of about eighteen men, including instrument men, plane table men, rodmen etc. The salary of the man in charge is from $100 to $300 a month. Trigular stations are set up on shore by means of which points in the river or harbor are located. Soundings are taken and plotted with a description of the bottom. The method of keeping the field book, making the plots, and the practical details of triangulation and sounding were all taken up by Mr. Cul-limore.

There was a brief business meeting preceding the lecture. R. E. Pearl 1910, resigned from the program committee because of the point system and W. C.
Askell 1910, was elected.

The following, who were proposed for membership at the last meeting, were elected:---From 1910, G. R. Crawford;

FRESHMEN AGREE

To Keep Away from Night Before by Formal Class Vote

At the meeting of the freshman class held yesterday noon various phases of Field Day were discussed. The president, H. D. Kemp, recommended that all freshmen keep away from the Field before the opening of the sports in the afternoon. He said that the 1911 men did not have to any rush the night before Field Day and that he thought that the only right thing to do under these circumstances was for the freshmen to stay away from the Field the night before.

It has been arranged for M. C. Woodson, who is our present leader, to have a seat in the front row at the theatre not until the freshmen are sure to hold up their end when it comes to making a noise.

At a meeting of the executive committee it was voted to have several Sagas this year. It was agreed that all the necessary expenses of the various teams should be paid by the dclass.
