In its first game of the season the Crimson aggregation was sent one point down to defeat by the score of 2 to 1. Monday night was played under the worst of conditions, the ice being covered with snow and rain. The weather was conducive to the development of the players' errors and this was greatly exaggerated by the fact that the game had to be held in such thickly settled country. Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, the Crimson aggregation played the last five games of the season and this caused it to set apart this convention. The executive committee of the alumni association has appointed an executive committee for the reunion and in turn, appoint sub-committees to look out for the various functions of the convention.

The executive committee and the chairman of the sub-committees will form the committee for the reunion. The executive committee consists of Edw. W. Webster 1888, chairman; Dr. Arthur A. Nye 1907, second; John P. Draper 1875, George W. Kirttidge 1877, William M. Robinson 1882, E. C. Snow 1888, Ernest M. Austin 1885, Henry Howard 1890, and L. W. Litchfield 1886, secretary. The general program has been discussed tentatively, and the following committee was formed:

The乒乓球 Union is to be used as a registration headquarters; Copley Hotel is to be opened during the three days as a residence, where there will be a desk and bulletin board for each class.

On Monday afternoon there will be a trip to the city, where the ladies of Boston will attend a tea at the Copley Hotel. The return will be made by train. Boston, in the evening a reception in honor of Prof. MacLaurin and later at a Joliffe Smoker in a large club-house, which will be given to Tech in the evening.
