THE RUSH

Here it is again! The Technique Rush, Technology's annual rough-house. The prospect of a good old time fight, such as mother used to hate, has been in the past sufficient to attract a good sized mob, but this year the Rush holds an added charm. There may be those who have no desire to get their noses broken or plant their surplus teeth in the virgin soil of yonder lot, but breathes there the man with soul so dead who never to himself has said "Would that I were a hero!" It's nothing much to hook a wet and drowning maiden out of an icy flood—who ever saw that in a moving-picture—but when it comes to getting thrown on the screen full size and twice as natural, ah! there's some honor to that! And so easy to do, too! Just get out in plain sight, muss your hair and look fierce—at the camera, not at the books.

COURSE IV. RECEIVES

On Monday afternoon the architects will hold their third annual reception on the third floor of the Pierce building. On this floor will be hung caricatures of every senior in Course IV and these are said to excel anything in this line in the two previous years.

On the fourth floor and in the studio will be held an exhibition of the theses work of the fourth year men. Both floors will be tastefully decorated with palms and flags of all descriptions.

The matrons for the occasion are Mrs. William Barton Rogers, Mrs. D. Despradelle, Mrs. Frank Cox, and Mrs. Alfred E. Burton. Miss Avery, Miss Glenny, Miss Glenn, and Miss Judith Longyear will pour, while Miss Helen Longyear and Miss Johnson will assist the matrons in receiving. Montague Flagg 1909 has charge of the arrangements. There will be music by an orchestra during the reception, which will last from four to six.
