In another column is an article which will give some indication of the condition the track team is in. This state of affairs in an institution of 1400 students can be due only to two causes: either about 95 per cent. of the men at Tech are physically incapacitated for any sport more strenuous than chess or ping pong, or else—and this is more probable—they do not care enough about the school which will one day mean more to them than any other place in the world.

All are heartily sorry for the first class, although these are often the most loyal and enthusiastic, but for the second class there is little excuse. A man who can go through Tech without giving the slightest intimation that he cares one bit more for the greatest scientific school in the world than simply the privilege to add her degree to his name, shows little promise of being very enthusiastic over any subsequent relations, and a man without enthusiasm will not get very far in these days. The man who has the ability and could have come out for the track team, perhaps the very man who will be needed next week to pull the team though to victory, will in all probability be around complaining of Tech's bad luck when he ought to be out back of the barn kicking himself for not doing his part, even though it be small.

There is a chance to help yet; come out Saturday and do your best. You will make someone else do better work, and your presence and interest will be an inspiration to those who will be chosen to wear the cardinal and gray in the intercollegiate. You are needed. Will you help?
