PHYSICAL RESEARCH

DURING SUMMER

Dr. Comstock Probes New Theory of Diamagnetism

During the past summer, the laboratory of the Institute of Technology was not a dead laboratory. In the Physical Department, research work has been continued on many different projects. Among these, the following are of particular interest: G. E. Batchelder and Professor C. C. Clark are working on the problem of diamagnetism, while C. E.
Batchelder is working on the problem of magnetism. The latter, in particular, is interested in the properties of diamagnetic substances.
