EXHIBIT

Music on the Union piano is lacking this year. It is almost a nonentity in the furnishing of the room. Last year the scores of the Tech Shows of previous years have always filled this vacancy. Music adds greatly to the attraction of the Union. Many have time to play bits of it; many more to listen to and enjoy the places they have seen or acted. The Show music presents to Tech men as none other can the other side of Institute life, which the Show stage is more than any other. Hut it also helps to perpetuate the good songs which do so often save the curtain falls for the last time in the April performances.

Let the Tech Show help the Union and the Union will do its part in helping the Show.

CURRENT EVENTS

The trustees of the Museum of Fine Arts announce the gift of $160,000 from R. B. Evans, recently received through his widow. Twenty-five thousand dollars of this amount completes Mr. Evans's large subscription to the building fund. Mr. Evans was a genuine lover of art, particularly of paintings. The Van Dyck which he gave the Museum he stated was purchased at auction without any knowledge of the fact that it had been lent to the Museum.

Harvard's Varsity eight defeated the water in a four-mile race on the second crew by a few feet of open Charles River last week. The winners gained five lengths in the first half of the race, following a collision with a launch.

FRESHMEN TAUGHT THE USE OF LOGIC

English Department Uses New Book By Prof. Bates In First Month

This summer Prof. Arlo Bates prepared a new plan of attack upon the freshness minds. He has written a twenty-two page pamphlet, entitled "First Year English, First Term. An Introduction to Composition." This book was used by the class of 1910 for the first five weeks of this term. Prof. Bates' object in writing this book was to give the first-year student practice in reasoning. It is intended to train the beginners to think things out for themselves. The pamphlet lays stress on accuracy and clearness of reasoning.

The lessons in this pamphlet consists of one or two pages of text each, with a number of exercises at the end of every lesson. These exercises involve the use of the principles of the paragraphs they have read. The first chapters take up the building of the argument, or what comes a discussion of "Analysis and Synthesis" and "Definition." The former involves the use of syllogism to establish the purpose of the book. The final chapters are devoted to the causes of fallacious reasoning.

A new instructor was added to the staff of the English department this fall. He is David Carb, A. B., Harvard 1906, who won the McKim Fellowship for 1905 and W. L. Bottomley, Columbia 1907, who won the Appleton Fellowship in 1905. Prof. Carb specialized in English composition and literature at Harvard for three years he was editor of the "Harvard Monthly." He has had considerable experience as a tutor in English.
