It does not seem that scholastic ability at the Institute is appreciated. The leading activities and student societies are known by reputation to practically all the students. This is entirely as it should be; but what about the men who are putting in their best efforts in their Institute work, and above all, what about the men who are participating in activities and, at the same time, are doing good work at the Institute? ought not these men to get credit for their work in one field as much as in another?

Presently, if an undergraduate wishes to get a reputation as a capable, efficient man and show what there is in him, he is practically compelled to go to some activity. His work there, if it is efficient, brings him esteem and a position, and is a very good incentive for him to neglect his studies. Some men fail to this temptation feeling that excellence is only possible on the campus in a way, wasted, and pay only sufficient attention to their work. In all this work exact track is kept of the ablest District and outside of United States. It seems entirely probable that the result will be a much more earnest work by all, especially by those men who have started in on the wrong foot and have soon slowed down with the feeling that there is nothing to do.

In closing, W. Wilson, 1911, business manager of this year's show, asks a very strong wish that the boys, work of his department. This work consists in getting the program published, in making contracts for the advertising and printing, and in handling the tickets. In all this work exact track is kept of the ablest men who are doing credit for themselves. It seems entirely probable that the result will be a much more earnest work by all, especially by those men who have started in on the wrong foot and have soon slowed down with the feeling that there is nothing to do.

Kenneth Greenleaf 1911, the stage manager, said that everybody who has come out when the call for the principle and chorus was made in February, even if the men think they have no chance, they should come out and let Usch-Franken sing them up. We have scarcely heard the chorus in this department, there was still a chance for others, and he claimed that all lower class men who have and ability, to come out. In closing, Wilson said that all the men in the Institute should do enough for the Show in order to feel that he, individually, has helped.

H. C. Davis 1911, publicity manager, said that the work of his department consisted in getting the Show before the public. This is done by publishing articles about the progress of the Show from time to time in The Tech, the Boston daily and the paper of other colleges. There is only one vacancy in the show.

Mr. Emerson also suggests the appointment of an alumni treasurer for the show, in order to relieve the business management of some of the work and to give a continuity to the management that is looking at present. In closing he urged all the new men to come out for the show, in order to meet each other and get together in a social way.

H. C. Davis 1911, publicity manager, said that although several very promising men had answered the recent call for candidates in this department, there was still a chance for others, and he claimed that all lower class men who have and ability, to come out. In closing, Wilson said that all the men in the Institute should do enough for the Show in order to feel that he, individually, has helped.
