THE ARENA.

New shell for the Crew! There are now two shells with places for eighteen men, and on the average four a crew, for practice. The first outing some afternoon at four and try pulling an oar in an eight-oared shell. Perhaps you'd like it. Everybody goes a chance.

1914 is certainly starting off wrong if one can judge by the number of Freshmen who report for tug-of-war. Every one is in for the field, and although they do not quite love the idea of losing when they are working so hard, still the whole crew is trying hard to get the oars out of the hands of the managers. This year's crew will be better than ever, and the first hopes are that the eight will work out and be ready for the fall.
