With all the precautions taken by last year's Institute Committee, this year has opened with no active committee. If there was no real work to be done, there might be some excuse for delaying action until all elections of class representatives have been made. But there is.

The greatest work accomplished by the committee last year was the establishment of the Finance Commission to act as a watch over the activities and classes in their financial affairs. One member was elected to serve on this non-student commission, Mr. I. H. W. Litchfield 1885. No one better equipped for this position, better prepared for the task, should have been named at the very end of last year's Institute Committee, this year.

Another one extended trip is taken, with performances in other cities. Every loyal Tech man should at least resolve to make an attempt to be actively connected with and support Tech Show 1911, in order to make it the best show ever.
