the tools of a secret and all powerful cabal! And as it is with principles, so has it been with the selection of candidates for office. Again and again men have been chosen who were in no sense affiliated with the so-called machine, who owed their nomination to their own abilities and to the influence which they exercised over the rank and file of the party. This very fact that Mr. Cotton has been selected as a candidate for Congress in the 13th district of our city, although Commissioner O'Meara, his opponent for the nomination, was known as the intimate friend and associate of the Governor and of the so-called bosses of the party, and our candidate for Attorney-General is a young man totally unconnected with the party manager, whose only claim to preference was his ability, proved by successful conduct of the office of District Attorney in his own district, and holds on the hands of the voters be gained by his vigorous and engaging personality. There are but two instances among many—on every hand men new are constantly coming to the fore, and selected by any coterie of party managers, but owing their advancement to their own characters and their own energy. As such men have appeared and shown themselves fitted for the work on hand, the older chieftains of the party have given cordial and generous welcome, and have made room for them among the leaders as soon as they showed capacity to lead. The same liberty that has been enjoyed by the leaders has been enjoyed also by the rank and file. No one has ever tried to put collar on or asked questions for the subservience unworthy of a free citizens. For the past eight years I have been the active leader in the Repub-ican ranks, have been a delegate to numerous conventions, and have been the party's candidate for office. In all that time I have never been asked to surrender a principle, or to any way been bound in my freedom of action. When I have differed in opinion from the party, I have said so frankly, where I have thought it my duty to act. I have sacrificed many of my friends and in both speech and action I have been unshaken and unrepented. As it has been with me, so it has been with the county, for we are enrolled under the Repub-ican banner. We have not been glad because we have served freely, but we follow our leaders solely, because they speak nothing from us that honorable men cannot willingly give. This is why today the party presents a united front to the enemy, and why we ask for it a continuance which has been shown by the voters of the Commonwealth.

I have thought it my duty to act independence I have done so openly and in both speech and action I have dependently I have done so openly The same liberty that has been enjoyed by the leaders has been enjoyed also by the rank and file. No one has ever tried to put collar on or asked questions for the subservience unworthy of a free citizens. For the past eight years I have been the active leader in the Repub-
ican ranks, have been a delegate to numerous conventions, and have been the party's candidate for office. In all that time I have never been asked to surrender a principle, or to any way been bound in my freedom of action. When I have differed in opinion from the party, I have said so frankly, where I have thought it my duty to act. I have sacrificed many of my friends and in both speech and action I have been unshaken and unrepented. As it has been with me, so it has been with the county, for we are enrolled under the Repub-
ican banner. We have not been glad because we have served freely, but we follow our leaders solely, because they speak nothing from us that honor-
able men cannot willingly give. This is why today the party presents a united front to the enemy, and why we ask for it a continuance which has been shown by the voters of the Commonwealth.

I have thought it my duty to act independence I have done so openly
and in both speech and action I have
dependently I have done so openly

electricity like bodies repel, while the unlike attract. Which accounts for the magnetic qualities of Fatima Cigarettes—they are totally unlike any others.

They generate a current of favor, powerful in its attraction of college students. Some day, some word will be coined to describe them.

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO CO.