To the Editor of The Tech:

Dear Sir:—The nominations for the officers of the class of 1912 close Wednesday, November 3, and the elections will be announced at the class dinner Wednesday, November 9. All the members of the class should realize that this election is the most important, and that the demands made upon its officers are unusual. It must be remembered that the chief duties of the president are real, the vice-presidency of the Institute Committee, and second, the entire oversight of the Junior Prom in April. These duties require not only a man who is well known in his class and associated with the various student activities, but also a man that can lend a committee an important status. The class management forms this year from its previous routine and places its responsibilities upon the Board of Directors, who may be inclined to do, and who can successfully manage a social function like the Junior Prom.

The fact that the class management forms this year from its previous routine and places its responsibilities upon the Board of Directors makes this body an all-important one. The other offices are equally as important, and it is to be sincerely hoped that every one who is eligible to vote will take advantage of this opportunity and carefully consider the matter before casting his ballot.
