CROSS-COUNTRY MEN ARE AT WINTER WORK

Cross-country indoor practice has begun in earnest. The long distance work is the particular feature of the winter training, and it is very essential that men desiring to make good along this line should show up regularly at practice. Up to this time the attendance has been so irregular that one new man remarked that, in three times he had been out, he had not seen the same squad twice. Besides running in the gymnasium, the team will use the B. A. A. track near the South Armory whenever weather permits. Coach Kanaly and the management are still looking for more new material. Freshmen, hope is a chance to learn the game when the team is not under the strain of preparing for a race. All others interested in the sport should take advantage of this remarkable opportunity to get in line when everyone has an equal chance.

Some four mails every day delivered in the office at Rogers, and that there is a man who gets a salary from the Institute to look after the mail. If this is the case there can be no reason why we can't have a perfectly regular delivery of mail to the "Cape." This would help the man who works there and would be of almost invaluable assistance to the men who have charge of the activities, for much of their mail is very important. There seems to be no reason why our post-office should not be just as efficient as that of any other college in the country, and we want it to be so.
