best adjutant-general that I ever said of him: "Colonel Walker is the President Lincoln. General Hancock versal admiration and received com-ness and courage in battle aroused uni-of Massachusetts Volunteers. His coolsargeant-major in the Fifth Regiment ing the call of the war of the rebellion of his life was the history of the techology. Through his efforts the size of the school was quadrupled and the number of buildings increased from one to five. The scope of the teaching here was considerably broadened and a number of new courses, including Electrical and Chemical Engineering, were added. During his presidency he also acted as member of a number of State and city committees. General Walker was also a author of a number books of history, biology and political economy, and was considered one of the highest authorities in his last subject.

For, to quote one of the many admsers of President Walker: "I was not President Walker, the economist, or General Walker, the soldier, or Professor Walker, the statistician, who the students of the Institute knew and loved, and whom they greeted with cheers whenever he appeared upon the platform of Huntington Hall. It was his winning and perfect character that stereotyped such a magnetic power over all of us who came under his influence.
We caught the contagion of his tireless energy and love for honest work. We were touched by his enthusiasm, his rider, his marvelous dash and fire. We felt the genuine influence of his personality. We wondered at his modesty.
None of us ever came into a informative conversation with him without feeling more hopeful, more full of confidence and resolve, for his optimism, his strong in human nature."

IN THE LIMELIGHT

The hockey team leaves tomorrow for its first trip. R. P. I. and Loudon Country Club, at Albany, will be played.

Those who didn't write lyrics for the Tech Show can whistle for it-write music.

Technique needs a good Freshman history. Perhaps some whole-souled
