COMMUNICATION

Through the courtesy of the Editors, I hope to bring to your mind a growing evil and ask your aid in crushing it. Almost every family has its "black sheep" and the family of the Institute is no exception. They have not become accustomed to the spirit here. We are here particularly to learn principles and truths. Three years ago the Class of 1897 gave to the Union one hundred Song Books and today there are less than five. There was not an over large amount of principle shown by this act.

To cut an article from a Union magazine, to go to a house to copy a book, etc. are becoming more usual. The minute thief, the shoplifter, the black sheep, etc. are becoming more common. Let every man do his best to check this evil, to corral the "black sheep", and help them each white again.

Sincerely, Prac.

The communication by "Prac" in today's issue is too true to be comfort- able. Every example which he cites, we understand, is an actual specific case which has come under his observation. The Union Committee has discovered that a house in the campus Library in the Union are missing. These books have probably been borrowed by students with the very best intentions of returning them, but the fact remains that they have never been returned and are not accounted for. Any further receiving of warped consciences was the cause of the sudden disappear- ance from the TECH office of a drawing submitted in the Show poster contest. This poster represents hours of work and thought which give it a personal value to the artist not to be reckoned in terms of intrinsic value. Parenthetically, we understand, is an actual specific case which has come under his observation.
