Monday March 27, 1911

During an intense silence and followed by loud groans of anguish and dismay, the following letter was read at a recent meeting of the Technical Board.

To the Board of Editors of Technique 1912

... we are at bat), — that you stretch a net back of your out-fielders (to prevent losing the ball when you are at bat) — that you be equipped with many stretchers and kind willing friends to bear the same (yourresar may be throughly carefed for) — that you now look to such knowledge that you may be able to place a large advance order for your temperance — that you procure from the Tech Army (about to depart for Mexico) one large gun (to use when your pitchers become weary) — and that finally you bid food and affectionate farewell to all friends that you may be able to stand. "As farmers whef their scythes, and fishermen hatch their hooks," so are we eagerly scraping the flush off our cues and hoping against hope that you will recover from the shock of this challenge in time to gather your forces and fill them with courage and most support, that you may overcome your fears in time to accept said challenge and come forth to meet your fate.

In anticipation,

The Tech, Vol. XXX
