THE TECH, BOSTON, MASS., APRIL 20, 1911.

TECHNIQUE 1912

EXCELLENT BOOK.

Technique 1912 is without doubt the most attractive and readable yearbook yet produced at the Institute. There are few radical changes from the books of former years, but these few have been almost without exception, for the better. The Board of Editors has certainly profited by the experience of former Boards, and chosen the best ideas from past Techiques and has added others of their own.

The art work is especially good. Upon this branch of the work largely depends the appearance of the book. While the art work is apt to lose the greater part of its judgment of the Technical, the 1912 Board has been exceptionally fortunate in the artist it has at its disposal. The line drawings are very well done and some of the work printed in black type in the center of the pages is truly worthy of a professional. The colored departmental pages are ones that can be desired. The work of Editor Chauncey Rynolds in particular, deserves commendation.

The order work is very well done and in the main is well chosen. If the writer offers to sell an ad in every color, in the cut of the door poster, the figure stands out more plainly and noticeably than in the printed poster itself. On the other hand, the mixture of brown and black type of white, the same page does not harmonize and is not pleasing to the eye. The bright red of the jester forming the border for the pages in the Grand Departmental is startling with the plain black and white of the remainder of the page.

The cover is one of the most attractive in years. The Editor describes it as being "like a checker board, from the point of Edgerton." The name of the man to whom the book is dedicated is also given in the interest of the Editor. The man has been so honored by us who in every way was deserving of the highest honor that can be given him to TECH. With admirable moderation of mind, he has always been and is a benefactor to the Institute which can not be too highly appreciated. The Board has done truly to honor in returning a position to the boy who has brought so much honor to the Institute.

The editor of the Professor Department did well to introduce the work of the faculty. In notes. Two minutes walk from all Tech Buildings. Unexcelled facilities of every sort. Come in and enjoy a little fun and exercise between classes.
