CAMBRIDGE SITE CHOSEN FOR NEW TECHNOLOGY

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology, at the special request of Governor William P. Wingate of Massachusetts, has chosen the site of the new Cambridge Institute of Technology

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology, at the special request of Governor William P. Wingate of Massachusetts, has chosen the site of the new Cambridge Institute of Technology for the location of its new campus. The site, located on the north side of the Charles River, has been selected because it is near the center of the city of Cambridge and is easily accessible by public transportation. The campus will include a new building for the Institute of Technology, which will be the largest in the world, and a new library for the Institute of Science, which will be one of the largest libraries in the world. The new campus will be completed in 1912.
