The Lawrence Academy Team Held Down in Close, Fast Game at Groton.

At the end of a hard, closely contested football game, the score was 1-0, in favor of Groton, and the game was a close, fast game for both teams. The 1914 team played slightly the better game, keeping the ball in their opponents' territory most of the time. Lawrence Academy was only able to make a few consistent gains by the use of a fine forward pass, which the Groton team seemed to find a hole every time that they tried, sending Captain Bryant to the sidelines clear of the game.

The work of William Williams, the 1914 quarter, was especially worthy of notice. He ran the team well and was a true star in the back field, however, and seemed to make gains without regard for the men in the opposing line. The half backs, Fox and Merrill, were both good ground gainers in the game, with 15 yards and 12 yards, respectively. Captain Bryant was easily the star in the back field, however, and seemed to make gains without regard for the men in the opposing line.

The game was well played by both teams, but the Groton team was slightly the better, and was able to keep their possession of the ball. Both sides resorted to punting frequently, but Groton led in both and had to do it to a very small extent.

At the end of a hard, closely contested game, the final score was 1-0, in favor of Groton, and the game was a close, fast game for both teams. The 1914 team played slightly the better game, keeping the ball in their opponents' territory most of the time. Lawrence Academy was only able to make a few consistent gains by the use of a fine forward pass, which the Groton team seemed to find a hole every time that they tried, sending Captain Bryant to the sidelines clear of the game.

The work of William Williams, the 1914 quarter, was especially worthy of notice. He ran the team well and was a true star in the back field, however, and seemed to make gains without regard for the men in the opposing line. The half backs, Fox and Merrill, were both good ground gainers in the game, with 15 yards and 12 yards, respectively. Captain Bryant was easily the star in the back field, however, and seemed to make gains without regard for the men in the opposing line.

The game was well played by both teams, but the Groton team was slightly the better, and was able to keep their possession of the ball. Both sides resorted to punting frequently, but Groton led in both and had to do it to a very small extent.

At the end of a hard, closely contested game, the final score was 1-0, in favor of Groton, and the game was a close, fast game for both teams. The 1914 team played slightly the better game, keeping the ball in their opponents' territory most of the time. Lawrence Academy was only able to make a few consistent gains by the use of a fine forward pass, which the Groton team seemed to find a hole every time that they tried, sending Captain Bryant to the sidelines clear of the game.

The work of William Williams, the 1914 quarter, was especially worthy of notice. He ran the team well and was a true star in the back field, however, and seemed to make gains without regard for the men in the opposing line. The half backs, Fox and Merrill, were both good ground gainers in the game, with 15 yards and 12 yards, respectively. Captain Bryant was easily the star in the back field, however, and seemed to make gains without regard for the men in the opposing line.

The game was well played by both teams, but the Groton team was slightly the better, and was able to keep their possession of the ball. Both sides resorted to punting frequently, but Groton led in both and had to do it to a very small extent.