GREAT ATTRACTIONS
AT KOMMERS' DINNER
Annual Tech Show Feed at 6.30 in Union Will Be the Best Ever Given.

Are you coming? Tonight in the Union will be held the most interesting Kommers' dinner ever. Last year's chorus girls, principals in costume, old Show men, and members of the Faculty will be there in large numbers, and in addition to this a few original "stunts" will be introduced which will help to live up the affair. The faculty committee has brought out this program so well that daily copies of last year's poster will be given away as souvenirs of the occasion.

Do you remember the marimba that ran through the entire house last year when Karl D. Ferentum, the clarinets, appeared on the stage in that genuine harem-skit imported from Turkey especially for the show? Well, everybody had better bring opera glasses or a telescope to the dinner, for Karl is going to be there dressed in self-designed harem-skit. Nor is there lack of other Edmund News, the comical butler; Wetherald and Hastings, who sang "Every Juliet has a Romeo;" and Ken Faunce, whose representation of Sherlock Holmes was the best, will all be there in costume. At former Show dinners there have usually been two or three principals in costume, but never before in the history of the Kommers' dinner has such an aggregation of principals, all in stage makeup, been gathered together. Their appearance and the stunts they will do will alone be worth the price of the ticket.

Among the Faculty, the Dean, Provost Rackham, Dr. Talbot and Mr. Blackahl, as he is known to the students, and without whom no Kommers' dinner can be complete, will all be there, with something of interest to give to the students.

HOCKEY TEAM TO TRY INTERCOLLEGIANS AGAIN
Great Improvement During the Past Week Should Make Victory Easy.

Last night, at the Arena, the Hockey team had a short practice scrimmage with the Intercollegians, the men that defeated Tech last week, in preparation for the game with them at the Arena tonight. The ice was rough and but little team work could be gotten for that reason.

The squad was divided up so that there was a constant fire of shots at and through the defense from the different sets of forwards. Both parts of the squad were permitted from the work and should show up much better on that account.

The game will be called at 7 o'clock sharp with the following group:

Fullbacks: Hurley, c.; Goldberg, m.; Shedd, g.
Halfbacks: Scully, Y.; Bomeisler, Y.; Ketcham, Y.; Miller, Penn State.
Centers: Bluthenthal, P.; Garrels, of Yale, who is about the top-notch man on the end of the line, his head work in mixing up plays, his tackling and his splendid putting him first on the list. The next man to be considered is Bomeisler of Yale, a man who has shown consistent, start worth in spite of his frequent handicaps in the line of injuries, and capable of putting it all over Sam White in the Princeton game by his general work and reliability. While he has shown a wonderfully clever qualification for the place by his perfect ways in following the ball all year. His lack of defensive strength alone makes it imperative that he rank on the second. Only of Dartmouth, the other end on the second, has a lower of strength for the Green, and he has lost the honors by a hair.

The tackles were fewer in number when they came down to the final sitting out, but they were more nearly of the same grade. The four men will have to be considered for the positions. Captain Hart, Princeton, is a little bit above the rest, for he showed almost superhuman power in the last two games of the season when he stopped two of the fastest and best halfbacks in the country. Littlejohn, of the Army team, played a fine, steady game and listtered up his side of the line in every play, having a slight advantage over his opponents. Garrels, of Dartmouth, seems to have a little superiority over his mate. Scully of Yale, for he played a game that was all but worthy of a championship place.

Of the Guards, Fisher of Harvard, has added the duties of captain without any apparent falling off in his All-American form of last year, and Duft, of Princeton, has shown strong in all his games. He shows very strong on the offense, for every atcher, he is the first man through, nailing his plays before they can get started. Garrels, of Michigan, and Goldberg, of Brown, would have ranked higher if they had played in better company, for they were both clever, fast men for their positions.

At center, we are up against it, for there are at least three men who should be considered. Huntington, of Harvard, can be kept cut, for he was taken into the backfield, but had he continued in the pivot position throughout the season he would have been about first choice. Ketcham, of Yale, it is claimed, was responsible for losing two games, but he has shown more power in the line and headwork in handling plays and covering his position. He seemed to outplay Bluthenthal in the Princeton game, and for that reason he has the first honor.

Miller, of Penn State, and Howe, of Yale, are away above the average run of quarter-back material, and are nearly on a par.

Miller has made his team what it is, and Howe has done the same for the other.堇berg, of Indiana, has distinguished himself, running his team and in his offensive work, enough to more than balance up his poorer work in handling passes, and just enough to give him the call for the place.

Misch excellence has been shown in the back-field all year, but there seem to be four men who stand outstandingly. The brightest of these stars is a man who, perhaps, not be picked by any of the experts, for he does not play on the guard eligibility rules. To

SHEDD LOOKS LIKE WINNER OF HANDICAP
Race to Be Held Over New Course at Wakefield

This afternoon the annual handicap cross-country run will be held at the new course in Wakefield. Bill C. Shedd, who was the first Tech man to finish the course last year, has signed the entry book, and looks to hold the handicap. The outcome of all handicap races are doubtful until the winner is across the line, as the ranges of the various classes gives to the men enough to even the rate and men who have not shown up well during the year are apt to finish before some of the leaders.

Captain Nye is also one of the possible winners, and if the handicapper likes him, should carry home one of the prizes. Bill C. Shedd, who is familiar with the course in Wakefield, and knows the course like a book, is very much the favorite honors away from Shedd, and it looks as if the race will be won by the team and the course.

The course is eight miles long and takes in all kinds of country, levels, woods, fields, pastures, and does not have the hard turns that are in the habit of going on those runs, and so a good winner is expected.

FROM COMMITTEE
Nominations for Most Important Junior Corn. Open Monday.

From Committee nominations will be made Monday. These words, simple though they are, convey much to the members of the Class of 1915, for they know the fact that those nominations are decided rapidly one to the most glorious tenures of their great success. The Class of 1913 have now the chance to call out either the best man of their class for this important committee, or they can let it fall into the hands of mediocre material to handle as they will. The nominations must be signed by ten of the voters (meaning men who have paid their dues), and left at the Class for the Board of Directors to look over the list before December 11th.
