AMERICAN COACHES LEAD THE WORLD

Sportsmen Trained Under Their Eyes Should Win Next Olympic Games.

England's greatest athletes admit that they have become noticeably stronger as a result of the training of their star coaches, and that this training is being extended to the lesser athletes. A. M. Jones, who was a Sophomore in the University last year, is one of the best cross-country runners in the world. He has been in training all year, and has won several important races. Jones is expected to be one of the main attractions at the Olympic Games in Stockholm, Sweden, next summer.

Also, some colleges are training athletes for the Olympic Games. The University of Pennsylvania, for instance, has a team of athletes who are training for the Games, and it is expected that they will do well. The team includes some of the best athletes in the country, and it is hoped that they will win some gold medals.
