WHAT CAUSED THE AUSTIN DAM FAILURE?

Prof. McKibbon Will Explain It to Civics Today in 6 Lowell.

The Austin Dam, its construction and the causes of its failure, will be the theme of discussion at the meeting of the Civil Engineering Society this afternoon in 6 Lowell, and Prof. F. P. McKibbon, head of the civil engineering department of Lehigh University, will deliver the illustrated talk.

Professor McKibbon has intimate knowledge of the facts surrounding this much-discussed dam failure, and is probably as well qualified to speak on its causes as any engineer in the country. He was engaged as an expert to report on the situation at the coroner's inquest into the doubts caused by the flood which went down the valley by the break in the dam, and was one of the first engineers to advise the city to construct a new dam under its predecessor.

The Masons first proceeded to run the business and the installation, and this was followed by a smoke talk interspersed between the various business to be club rendered the characters of the following program:
