as assistant track manager and interested in athletics. H. G. Storke, who plays on the hockey team, P. H. Taylor, secretary of the class, A. H. Stubbs, who was on the Institute last year and ran on the relay teams. A. P. Nye, who is now captain of the Institute cross-country team and prominent in athletics. G. M. White, now a member of the Institute Committee, and was the manager of the Sophomore relay team.

could costs four or five hundred dollars. It has not been deemed expedient, or even necessary to sink more money "in the ground," as would have been the case if we had built new courts; besides, we had not the money.

Now as to the tennis teams being left to themselves, this is no different than in other branches of athletics; the students must run class games themselves, and also the class and Institute teams in every line of sport, and the Advisory Council have been pushing this more and more at the undergraduates and to throw the responsibility on the latter.

As to golf, M. L. T. was a member of the N. E. I. C. Golf Association until said association died, and in this connection we would state that the Advisory Council only feel that they can recognize athletic teams, and particularly those connected with the N. E. I. C. A.

You're truly,
F. H. Briggs.
