COMMUNICATION.

We invite communications from all men in the Institute on important subjects. We take no responsibility for their sentiments and we must be able to say in what way they may come in, whether they're signed or not.

To the Editor of THE TECH:

Saturday's issue of your paper contained, without a doubt, the most absurd, the most inconsiderate, and the most inane communication that has ever come in to our office. We refer to the article on the present management of the Union, written by one signing himself A. K. Jordan.

The purpose of this present communication is to give a concise statement of the facts concerning the Dining Room. In case any one should have been misled.

The Dining Room has been put on a sound financial basis, and why the management should not be kept.

The profits are far exceeding the $1000 mark is highly ridiculous. Our room is always welcome. Under the old system, the Union was patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.

The writer betrays his profound ignorance again when he claims that the committees have been reformed by the Dining Room.

The writer's non-sense about college spirit are the mere parings of an adolescent mind. The Union is patronized for the reason that a superior article is given at a cheaper price than can be obtained anywhere in that vicinity. The results of the first two years showed how much college spirit the students at the Institute building had, where their dormitories were concerned.