The first communication on this subject was not directed particularly to this. It may be, to look at the matter as charitably as possible, that the Union Committee who concocted that communication was gathered from parties acquainted with the Union, or from members of the Union Committees which had occurred in the laboratories. So far as actual need for the taken articles goes, if a man absolutely refuses an overcoat it is probable that a subscription list would soon purchase one.

We recommend that every man keep a careful watch over his valuables, even to the extent of not allowing them beyond his vision. Every man who is found with things which do not belong to him is in a fair way to leave the community.

AN ENTERTAINMENT.

Friday evening the Union will have a really original program for its entertainment. We hope this is not the last but a determinate effort of the committees to attract an audience, but whether it is not, the entertainment is worthy the attendance of the institute.

We had been thinking of inquiring with the Dining Room Committee whether it would not be too big to give an entertainment some evening in the Union without charge which might be for the benefit of all students, but the announcement that the Mandery Club is to take part that Friday evening damps the inclination. Now, of course, the entertainment is assured, and the quality of it is certain from the present program, we trust the students will show their appreciation. All come!

COMMUNICATION.

To The Editor of THE TECH:

The members of the Dining Room Committee who concocted that communication in Tuesday's issue showed a remarkable command of epistle. It is to be regretted that they forgot themselves and stooped so low as to call a fellow native of our State and as such, why they were so anxious to find out to whom A. K. Icher was, and why the fact that they knew who it was had anything to do with the spicy nature of their remarks.

The first communication on this subject was not directed particularly to the Dining Room Committee, but rather to force a certain conflict of affairs. All information is that communications was gathered from members of the Union Committee, and from parties acquainted with the actual condition of affairs. There is not a statement in the communication of the Dining Room Committee which refutes any facts stated in the communication of Saturday. They evidently see in their wrath, and the result was loss of gas with little solid matter. I will have more to say concerning the Dining Room Committee later.

I am now convinced that the Union is acting in good faith and as he believes best. I am sorry that I have seemed to doubt his motives and put him in a false position. I am quite sure that there are defects in the Union, and that they will be carefully considered and corrected if it is believed best.

Very truly yours,
A. K. Icher.

FLOW OF OHIO RIVER.

The Ohio River, which is the principal tributary of the Mississippi, has larger discharge than the Mississippi and the Missouri combined. Although its name is often said that of the St. Lawrence, it carries off twice as much water.
