Masons Assemble for First Time

Excellent Dinner Enjoyed in Union, Organization Discussed.

Last evening Steward Colton outlined all the former efforts in the quality of the dinner which he prepared before the assembly of Masons at the Institute in the upper dinner room of the Union. Professor F. M. Allen addressed the Masons on their organization at the Institute and also their future here. He said that they had attempted to get together a few years ago, but the effort was not very successful and that seemed to be their chance. An effort was made to organize a Masonic Association, like other student organizations or the Academic Fraternity, also a lodge to Linning of Harvard, all members of whom seemed to be their chance. A. L. Shedd, E. E. Sommer and M. Ibbott of Harvard, all members of the Acacia Fraternity, spoke to the Masons and introduced several interesting speakers, who addressed the Masons on their organization here at the Institute.

Cross-Country Men Ready For Race

Prospects Look Much Better For Freshmen Than at Beginning of Season.

Although the weather has been unfavorable, the cross-country men have made a lot of improvement, and their chances of winning the meet are much better than at the beginning of the season. Although there have been some new men who will finish in the first places, they have scarcely enough men out to make a meet.

The mile event at the field day was an entirely non-competitive event, unless one or two of the Sophomores at the Harvard-Cornell meet. In this case the cross-country team will be weakened and the advantage will be with the freshmen.

SHOW POSTERS

Many Reservations Made and Several Seats Sold.

The seat sale for the Spring concert was unusually successful. At the present writing not half the house has been sold, and it is expected that the full house will be in attendance. The weather before Saturday the cross-country meet will be a major factor in determining the results of the race. In this case the cross-country team will be weakened and the advantage will be with the freshmen.
