A. LAWRENCE ROTCH DIED YESTERDAY

Graduate of the Class of 1884 Succumbs on an Attack of Appendicitis.

Professor A. Lawrence Rotch, 884, died at his home, 211 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass., on Sunday, April 8, at the age of fifty-one, of appendicitis, after a week's illness. His mother and father were Quakers and were among the few colonists that founded New Bedford. His grandfather was Abbot Lawrence, witten by others as the author of the Laws of Lawrence, a Boston merchant and for a time U. S. minister to Great Britain. Professor Rotch was educated at the Chazy Hall School and in Europe before entering the Institute in 1880, with the class of 1884. He received a B. Sc. degree in course 17, and in 1871 an A. M. from Harvard.

During his life he received many honors from the city of Harvard and from Europe. He belonged to the International Union of American Academicians, and to the Royal Society of London, and to the Royal Institute of Science of Stockholm. Since 1896 he has been a professor of geology in the American Meteorological Society.

Since 1896 he has been a professor of geology in the American Meteorological Society, and a trustee of the Boston Society of Natural History. He has been an active member of the Corporation of the Institute for over twenty-five years.

FRESMEN DEFEATED.

Medford High Ball Team Wins a One-Sided Contest.

Twenty-one was the score by which the freshmen were defeated by the crack Medford High School baseball team at Medford on Tuesday, April 8. From the very beginning of the game one was convinced that the contest was a one-sided and lopsided affair, and the freshmen could only make one hit during the nine innings, while the home team rolled up a score of six runs, and the visitors could not make a hit except for a single in the third inning. The only mistake made by the visitors was in the ninth inning, when C. L. Scott of the freshmen failed to square around the bases on a fly ball, and K. S. Woodruff of the freshmen lost his hat.

The high jump brought out some surprises. A. P. Nye, '14, took the lead at the start and held it all the way, except for a half-mile near the middle of the run, when C. L. Scott, '14, led. Both came onto the foot of Lera Anderson's score, and both reached the final record 87 1/3 to 51 2/3. The score of the track meet was 62 1/2 to 51 2/3.

The Sophomores won from freshmen in athletic meet at field Saturday. Cross Country Taken by Sophs with 22 points. Makes final score 87 1-3-51 2-3; Williams and Guething Stars at Meet.

E. winning both the track and cross-country runs, the Sophomores again asserted their athletic supremacy over the freshmen, and this track meet was so close, and it was only the right rule of adding the difference of the scores in the cross-country race to the winners' tally that made the final record 87 1-3 51 2-3. The score of the track meet was 62 1/2 to 51 2/3. The Sophomores received 23 points in the cross-country race, and the freshmen then piled up 83, thus giving the 1914 class credit for 22 points in the meet. The Sophomores showed up much better than the freshmen, who were appreciably backing in the distant events, all the men being needed to make a full cross-country team. The Sophomore team was composed of: H. S. Wilkins, '14, had an easy time winning the 100-yard dash, leading J. H. Boltone, '14, by five yards. J. H. Boltone, '14, won the 220-yard dash in 21 1-3.
