Dr. W. A. Tufts Will Speak Before T. C. A.
Pastor of Presbyterian Church
Here Today in Union At 1:30 O’clock.

Today the speaker at the noon meeting will be the Rev. W. A. Tufts, who is the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

His subject is to be "The Man Behind the Gun," which he has chosen himself, and is prepared to make as practical and helpful one for every one who hears him today. His ability as a speaker and leader in other ways became known to people in Boston before his appearance here in his present church, and it was because of his firm regulation that he was offered the pastorate. His success in building up an influential church that before had not amounted to much, fully justified all expectations and showed that a man of such calibre as his can bring success to an undertaking that did not look very promising.

A man that can accomplish so much in his church in a short time will have many interesting things to tell the members, and the Association hopes that a big crowd will be in the Union at half-past one to listen to him speak about the "Man Behind the Gun."

COMMUNICATION.

We invite communications from all men. We take no responsibility for their sentiments and do not agree to any in which they may come, unless they are signed and agree to be printed.

To the Editor of THE TECH:

I want to protest against your remarks concerning the House Committee in Wednesday’s issue of THE TECH.

The House Committee learned indirectly of Major Cole’s gift through the columns of your paper and from other sources. President Keen of the Institute Committee made the arrangements to have the books written on the shelves where the books making up the lists, and on the shelves nearest the door at that. The House Committee had sufficient experience to anticipate the natural results of such an action and would have done nothing so rash. Now, with this remissness in fund of experience that thecommittee claims for the committee, we ask why should those books still be resting on the same shelves near the door?

The absurdity of the charge makes it almost unworthy of criticism, but we have to agree that the policy of THE TECH is to further the interests of Technology, and if a deed needs scathing criticism it will get it whether certain parties in our midst object to it or not. Every school has its defects, and these have undoubtedly to be remedied. In a college where the men are given opportunities for meeting in mass the results of any incident is to publish it in THE TECH. As a student organization it is up to us to do our part by the student body, and if we can show by any able work we intend to do it without further apology.

The remainder of the letter is a critique of the University Library and the need for better organization.

CRITICISM.

THE TECH has come in for a great deal of criticism lately on account of the policy of its editorial column. We have been accused of blackening the school in the eyes of the outside world and generally damaging the reputation of the Institute.

The absurdity of the charge makes it almost unworthy of criticism, but we have to agree that the policy of THE TECH is to further the interests of Technology, and if a deed needs scathing criticism it will get it whether certain parties in our midst object to it or not. Every school has its defects, and these have undoubtedly to be remedied. In a college where the men are given opportunities for meeting in mass the results of any incident is to publish it in THE TECH. As a student organization it is up to us to do our part by the student body, and if we can show by any able work we intend to do it without further apology.
