A Most Brilliant Company of Six Hundred Danced The Field.

Among the social landmarks of Technology student life of recent years, the Junior Promenade held by the class of 1912 at the Hotel Someset last Friday night will take a prominent place. The magnificent ball was appropriately decorated with Technology and class pennants, and floral displays. The hall of the orchestra balcony was occupied by an immense basket of roses, under which was hung a 1913 banner, furnished by the Technology penant makers. Under this balcony was a bower of flowers. The chaperones’ balcony was likewise tastefully adorned. Baskets and swags were everywhere in evidence, and the whole combination formed a most delightful setting for the crowd of dancers.

The Promenade was a most pleasing scene. Color and vivacity were ever present in the 1,100 people who numbered five hundred. The source of the young ladies, ranging from rosily cheeked juniors, fresher for over 1,000, to splendid figures, and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald sung out the next day, was a graceful maiden, Miss Freeman, of Boston, Miss Lofstet, of Cambridge, Miss Hewett of Philadelphia, Miss Gutterson, Miss Damon, Miss Parker of Malden; Miss Bassett, Miss Covert, Miss Haslam, Miss Williams, Rudolf, and a few choice seats still remain but the Malden performances should obtain tickets for one of the two Boston performances. The Malden show, 1912, will be a matter of history, and the next year’s performance will see either of the two Boston performances. The Malden Auditorium, with a scale of prices slightly lower than that which have been in effect for two years, the last performance being last night. All applications should be made once as the accommodations are limited.

BATTLESHIP OFFICERS.

The upper class officers of the Technology Battalions, 1912, attended the reception given by Governor and Mrs. Foss to the Legisla ture and members of the staff. The officers of three of the Major Brigades, were received early in the evening and a most enjoyable hour meeting many of the prominent people of the city. The function was most brilliant in every way.
