The Secretary of the T. C. A. and the Bible Study Committee will be glad to arrange groups for any time and place that will be convenient for any group of men, such as freshman men, or those who live in a particular neighborhood. For instance, one class might be for those on St. James avenue, another for those on upper St. Botolph street, as well as one for those in the Union. There is also a suggestion of having one on upon the Freshman floor.

Mr. David Carb to Tell Amateur Authors How to Produce a Good Book.

Mr. David Carb, of the English department, will address prospective authors of the book for Tech Show, 1913, in the Shaw office tomorrow at 12:30. This will give the students who are not for the twenty-five dollar prize a chance to get some excellent advice on the subject of writing for a show play. Mr. Carb is himself an amateur playwright, and his talk will be based on personal experience. He has been actively concerned with the production of plays at the Tech Theatre, and is one of the signers of the name of the Harvard Dramatic Club. This talk will be of particular interest to the amateur, and in agreement with his statement that "This wants to help the show all he can."

There will be another competition conducted with the work of the Shaw committee, another a playside writer, as well as many other groups. There are at least twelve men interested in the show and there is every reason to believe that a new member of the show management will soon be picked out.
