Dartmouth Freshmen, with 65 points, under such a capable coach as Mr. Benson. With an eighth-place finish at Andover, considerable glory was theirs. Ranney is the present president.

Ranney decided to make it an honorary election in the Institute and the giving of good fellowship is further secured an excellent program is to be furnished the artists of the Institute.

The Walker Club was organized in 1895 by the students of Course 9, then in the Department of Naval Architecture. The object of the club at that time was to promote general education in the Institute and the giving of short plays. With the advent of the Minstrel Show, followed by the Tech Show, which were representative of the entire school, the dramatic part was discontinued. However, the members, who were always anxious to have a club, thought of making it an honorary one and to elect men from all courses who showed an appreciation of a broad education for an engineer. The members held a dinner about once a month, at which several informal talks of a nonprofessional nature were given and good fellowship is further secured. In addition a social reception is given at the beginning of the term to welcome men coming from other colleges. A. G. Burton is the present president.

LOLLITA AND RAN, "CASTLES IN SPAIN!"

The dinner last Saturday was the last attended of this year's dinner at the Institute with the exception of the "Altho Technology" dinner of last year. There were 150 men present at this year's Kennedy dinner as compared with 169 last year.

General Manager Works of the Tech Show presided and introduced the various speakers. After 5 remarks about the show as a whole, and especially about the orchestra, which rendered excellent music throughout the dinner, he called on Don Bonn for a short talk. Don enumerated a number of the advantages of the show, not only as a training in dramatic art, but also as a social feature of the Institute. He showed that he did the fellow in to gain in a democratic way, and impressed especially upon the point to be used on special occasions like the Kennedy dinner.

Stirred by the spirit of the American pin-up girl, the last talk was given by Edgar Menderson A.B. '13, winner of the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet. Jones won the race with the low score of 23 points, easily leading the speedy Cornell team, which was the favorite. Before the race, John Paull Jones, of Cornell, was the individual winner, receiving the six-mile course in 25 minutes, 33.8 seconds.

The show crack runner, finished 157 yards behind Jones. By damaging their own at the finish the Crimson team captured the championship in the same manner that they finished Yale; the fifth man to cross the finish line for them came in last place. Captain Noy of the I. C. A. A. A. meet, in first place, the next two men on the team, finished 44th and 54th, respectively.

The Cornell men, however, are the ones who ran at the lead, with the Harvard man alone close at their heels, while the other teams were bracketed in a few yards in the rear. The last score recorded, however, was that of the Harvard men, and Van never led. Tallor of Brown's next talk was given by the Tech Show, and was the last to finish. The visit of the Tech Show to Brown, dropped back about 20 yards and remained in that order to the finish. When the last was two-thirds of the way, the runners and it all well, with the conclusion that they had done their part in the performance. One man's last talk was given by the Tech Show, and was the last to finish. The visit of the Tech Show to Brown, dropped back about 20 yards and remained in that order to the finish. When the last was two-thirds of the way, the runners and it all well, with the conclusion that they had done their part in the performance.

The close race of the day was furnished by Technology and Yale. Although all the five institutes runners finished before the last two men, they were not able to obtain the lead gained by the last three men, as Langmuir, their first man to finish, crossed the line in fourteenth place.

The team summary: First, Harvard, 32 points; second, Cornell, 40 points; third, Dartmouth, 87 points; fourth, Brown, 171 points; fifth, Pennsylvania, 136 points; sixth, Technology, 127 points; seventh, Brynmaor 74 points; eighth, Princeton, 198 points; ninth, Yale, 202 points; tenth, N. Y. C. 223 points. The order of finish was Harvard, Cornell, Tech, Brown, Princeton, Yale, Nansemond, C. A. A. A. A.
