Technology, he says, is the fact that after the teams are picked those not winning a place on the squad will work until the next year, instead of preparing for the future. When the men learn to do this the caliber of the team will be greatly improved. Also, the recommendations that the men do systematic work at least once a week, and every morning take a short run for exercise. However, he wishes it understood that no one will be allowed to use any of the apparatus while one of the Gym classes is on the floor. One of the great troubles in the past has also been the fear new men have of the time trials and races which causes them to run below their real ability.

Another feature of the work will be a squad team composed of those not able to make the teams and of those whose coaches consider need strengthening. This squad will be in charge of Captain A. F. Ney of the cross-country team. They will take long runs and do work such as the cross-country team does. This will strengthen them greatly and be a great help to them next year. Also any one on this squad who makes very rapid progress will be given a trial for the relay team.

Captain Germain then spoke a few words to the gathering. He said the signs of a good runner were more in the face than in the body, because the man with lugging would run in athletics as well as in their studies. They watch better runners, endeavor to profit by the knowledge thus gained, and when they see their faults are very quick to remove them. He also remarked upon the hard work necessary to obtain success and cited the case of Coach Kanaly, who worked in a gym every night for four years before he won the success which he now has received. Captain Germain also requested the fellows to refresh themselves more in their trials, and said that in the first trials of the Freshman cross-country this fall the cause of the slow time was the fact that the runners failed to run to the limit of their strength.

The meeting was attended by about sixty fellows, and all showed great interest in the speeches. Marceau, of last year's relay team, was to have spoken but was unable to attend.
