LYRIC COMPETITION NEARLY THE CLOSE

Many Lyrics Handled in For Show—Inducements Offered For More.

The lyrics competition for the Tech Show is still open and there are still many chances for good lyrics. Several lyrics have been handed in which have shown merit. The management, however, would like to have more submitted. This year's Show allows for a much greater variety of lyrics than any of the previous ones, which makes them easier to write.

The inducements for the successful lyric and song writers are free tickets to the Show, Manager Flack of the Ringe Department will be in the Union every afternoon to give the necessary information to anyone who wishes to enter this competition. The authors of the Show, J. M. M那就是 and R. M. Manderseen, are willing to give any information the writers may wish to the Show office every afternoon to give the necessary information to anyone who wishes to enter this competition.

The male competition will begin in a short time and the Show officials hope that an even greater number of lyrics than were entered last year will try this year. Further particulars regarding this competition will appear in THE TECH in a few days.

Dean Burton told the members of the Class of 1914 at the dinner last evening of the great help that the undergraduates can be, especially to the various committees that are considering the best methods of arrangement for the social life of students in the new Institute. He explained what some of the problems are that present themselves for solutions and urged every man to give the matter his serious thought, adding them at the same time to bring any ideas which they have to him.

One of us should realize when a privilege is offered us at this time in co-operating with these committees who are seeking the best ways to bring about the highest good, and should indeed give our best efforts toward finding what we consider to be good features to introduce. A general and very good idea may be obtained from an article appearing in the June issue of the Technology Reporter. It can be seen in the Reference Library, as to what must be decided before any definite plans can be made, and every man will do well to read the discussion carefully. At Dean Burton is said not to be the way that the facts are not actually living, in conditions which are to be improved upon are possibly able to give very concrete ideas as to the needed changes.

Let us all help in whatever way we can toward the New Technology.

BROTHERHOOD MEETS.

Last night the Brotherhood of St. Andrew held the first of a series of three discussions on the puzzling problems of the Christian Religion. These discussions—there are two to follow—were led by Mr. Van Herten and are taken in an informal way.
