COSMOPOLITAN CLUB.
(Continued from Page 1.) The third number was a Dialogue between a Chinese student and a reporter purporting to be a representative of THE TECH. The parts were taken by Mr. Turpin Hsi and Dr. W. S. Harrv. Harrv was the reporter and the student.
Mr. Harrv asked a number of questions and the student replied appropriately.

The parts were taken by Mr. W. G. Luo. His last selection was a letter written by a generato his superior and expressing his loyalty to the revolutionary cause. Finally, several slight-hand tricks were shown by Mr. C. S. Li of Harvard, and P. T. Yeh of the Institute.

Among others they succeeded in burning a cord and making it reappear in an egg. That it was the same cord was shown conclusively by a fact that a corner which had been torn off before it was burned fitted the re-scored card exactly. Mr. Li was also very skilful with other card tricks.

He concluded with several Chinese refreshments. On the whole this evening surpassed anything previously given by the Cosmopolitan Club, and every one of the three hundred or more guests went away very well pleased.
