In a short time the Freshmen will be asked to signify their choice of course for continued study at the Institute. This selection is an all-important one, which colors the rest of a man's life. A large number of men come here because engineering appeals to them in a life work, but with no definite branch in mind. During the first half of the Freshman year it is perhaps too early to be decideable of each general course. To further aid in the selection conferences are arranged, at which a representative instructor from each course outlines the work in his particular field, and answers questions submitted by the student's point of view. The dates for these conferences have appeared in a recent issue of THE TECH and are posted on the bulletin boards.

A desire to attend these conferences and ask questions cannot be over-estimated. Before entering a course a student should know just now. That's all we want to your morning greeting? That's all we want to know now just.
