INSTITUTE COMMITTEE HEARS GOOD REPORTS

Sub-Committee Report Progress Along Lines Leading to Reforms

The first meeting of the Institute Committee was held on Thursday, February 17th, under the chairmanship of Mr. G. E. Morgan. The committee met to hear a report of the Union Committee. This report was submitted by Mr. C. M. Morse, who explained the work of the committee. The report was read by Mr. L. E. Langley, who read the report of the Union Committee. The report was then discussed by the committee. The following are the points which he covered:

- The committee was accepted.
- They were efficient.
- They recommended the resignation of the treasurer.
- They recommended the resignation of the registrar.
- They recommended the resignation of the auditor.
- The committee was accepted.

The Institute has no more than the ten members of the committee.

C. Morse had designed the position of the registrar, which is a difficult position. These books are part of the collection and cannot be replaced. The committee is composed of the members of the college. They have examined the books held in the library. It is especially regrettable that eight of nine in a set of books have either been taken or mutilated. They are unique. These books are part of a very limited edition and cannot be replaced.

The Institute Committee is composed of the members of the college. They have examined the books held in the library. It is especially regrettable that eight of nine in a set of books have either been taken or mutilated. They are unique. These books are part of a very limited edition and cannot be replaced.

SUB-_COMMITTEE REPORT PROGRESS ALONG LINES LEADING TO REFORMS

The first meeting of the Institute Committee was held on Thursday, February 17th, under the chairmanship of Mr. G. E. Morgan. The committee met to hear a report of the Union Committee. This report was submitted by Mr. C. M. Morse, who explained the work of the committee. The report was read by Mr. L. E. Langley, who read the report of the Union Committee. The report was then discussed by the committee. The following are the points which he covered:

- The committee was accepted.
- They were efficient.
- They recommended the resignation of the treasurer.
- They recommended the resignation of the registrar.
- They recommended the resignation of the auditor.
- The committee was accepted.

The Institute has no more than the ten members of the committee.

C. Morse had designed the position of the registrar, which is a difficult position. These books are part of the collection and cannot be replaced. The committee is composed of the members of the college. They have examined the books held in the library. It is especially regrettable that eight of nine in a set of books have either been taken or mutilated. They are unique. These books are part of a very limited edition and cannot be replaced.

The Institute Committee is composed of the members of the college. They have examined the books held in the library. It is especially regrettable that eight of nine in a set of books have either been taken or mutilated. They are unique. These books are part of a very limited edition and cannot be replaced.