FRESHMEN HAVE VERY SUCCESSFUL DINNER

Excellent Speeches and Fine Menu at Annual Dinner in Union.

The Freshman Dinner, which was held last Saturday in the Union, was a success from the “regulations” which were enforced before the soup, up to the final one before the meeting broke up.

The first part of the evening’s entertainment was furnished by E. M. Phillaum, ’13, who played several selections from the large repertoire of rag time. The latter took the lead at the start and ran well until the last two miles. Reed stuck to the lead at the start and was never passed, and did the same thing for the next quarter with a similar result. Guething finished well leaving Zepfier in second place, with Wall third, with several yards between them.

In the high hurdles Curtis took the lead at the start and ran well until the last two miles. When he weakened perceptibly, and Guething passed him, Guething finished at a good pace with the finisher in second place and Dean third.

The Freshmen had only one man in the 220. The three freshmen drew the line at the finish. Foster was a fast leader, but Clarkston, ’13, who was running with him, started with a slight mixup, and Richard Lawrence, who was leading, fell at a two-twenty clip. Reed stuck to the lead, and the two were neck and neck, but Richard Lawrence, who had run the hurdles, led finished well, leading Curtis by several yards, with Deane, ’11, third. The contest was of especial interest as a struggle between Guething and Hill, ’13. The latter took the lead at the start and ran well until the last two miles, when he weakened perceptibly, and Guething passed him. Guething finished at a good pace with the finisher in second place and Dean third.

The Freshmen had only one man in the 220. The three freshmen drew the line at the finish. Foster was a fast leader, but Clarkston, ’13, who was running with him, started with a slight mixup, and Richard Lawrence, who was leading, fell at a two-twenty clip. Reed stuck to the lead, and the two were neck and neck, but Richard Lawrence, who had run the hurdles, led finished well, leading Curtis by several yards, with Deane, ’11, third. The contest was of especial interest as a struggle between Guething and Hill, ’13. The latter took the lead at the start and ran well until the last two miles, when he weakened perceptibly, and Guething passed him. Guething finished at a good pace with the finisher in second place and Dean third.

The Freshmen had only one man in the 220. The three freshmen drew the line at the finish. Foster was a fast leader, but Clarkston, ’13, who was running with him, started with a slight mixup, and Richard Lawrence, who was leading, fell at a two-twenty clip. Reed stuck to the lead, and the two were neck and neck, but Richard Lawrence, who had run the hurdles, led finished well, leading Curtis by several yards, with Deane, ’11, third. The contest was of especial interest as a struggle between Guething and Hill, ’13. The latter took the lead at the start and ran well until the last two miles, when he weakened perceptibly, and Guething passed him. Guething finished at a good pace with the finisher in second place and Dean third.