T. C. A. ADVISORS

Continued from Page 1.1 educational and in a social way. He mentioned the Public Library, the Art Museums, the parks and the social life which are conducted by neighboring churches.

In regard to the school work Dean Burton said that he had found that new men have difficulty in adjusting themselves to the conditions of college life. They are inclined to devote too little time to systematic work on home lessons, when they find the Institute work is not quite so hard as they expected it would be. He said that the consequences of this slackness in the work was the necessity for "cramping," with probable trouble.

After the Dean had finished his talk, and had thanked the men for the help they had given the Registrar's Office, the meeting adjourned to the upper room of the Union, and M. E. Langley, president of the T. C. A., introduced Ralph Salisbury as the moving spirit of the whole work. Salisbury thanked the men for their enthusiastic co-operation. Then C. G. Norton spoke of the membership of the Association, and desired every advisor to try to get new members.

Secretary Talbot had a lot of important things to say about the work. The "bibles" are waiting at the T. C. A. office for those Freshmen and new men who have not yet received one. After they have been distributed as fast as possible to all men who entered this year, the remaining few will be given to the advisors. Secretary Talbot also added a few words to what Dean Burton had said, and in particular he charged the advisors to see if they could reduce the number of flunk-outs at the end of the first term. He intends to have advisors appointed for every man who enters the Institute this year, and for that reason he wishes to hear from men who would like to take up the work.

The Secret of Good Batting is similar to the secret of good business—it happens to some and just misses the others.

If there ever was a commercial home run it's Fatima, the Turkish-blend cigarette. The expert who conceived this blend was some batter I who conceived this blend was some batter I when he first lined out in the college towns—the student body quickly proclaimed them winners. Today Fatima is the biggest selling cigarette in this country.

The secret is—pure, good, choice tobacco no package—quality all the way.
