The prize for the best 1917 Class Yell was awarded to C. T. Barnard at the class meeting which was held on Monday. The words are as follows:

Seventeenth Seventeenth! Seventeenth! The words are given slowly at first, going faster all the time, in imitation of a locomotive.

The prize was a three foot by six foot Technology Banner and was given by the Chauncy Hall Club. Copies of the yell were handed in to a member of the Club and a class meeting was called on Monday in order that they might be tried out before the whole class. There were quite a number to be tried, and when they had all been given, a vote of the class was taken. C. T. Barnard’s yell received the largest number of votes.
