LA BOHEME TO BE GIVEN MONDAY NIGHT
Tetrazzini To Sing In Title Role Of "Lucia" For Saturday Matinee.

The Boston Opera Company will start its seventh week next Monday. The repertoire contains no new operas but includes several of the most popular ones with very good casts. The week will open with a repetition of Puccini's "La Boheme," on Monday, January 5th. The cast will be the same as at the previous performance, including Maggie Teyte as Mimi, Giuanna Martinelli as Rosaldo, and Henry Danes as Marcello. Mr. Moranzoni will again conduct this popular lyric drama of the Bohemian student life of Paris.

On Wednesday night, Saint-Saens "Samson et Dalila" will be given its third hearing of the season, with Marguerite D'Alvarez and Edouard Ferrai-Fontana in the title roles, and Henry Danes, Jose Mardones and Paolo Ludikar also in the cast. Both of the former performances were great personal triumphs for Mme. D'Alvarez and Mr. Ferrai-Fontana and local audiences are again given an opportunity to hear these incomparable artists in roles quite worthy of them. Mr. Andre-Caplet will direct.

The Friday night offering will be "The Jewels of the Madonna," an opera that proved so popular last year that it had to be given seven times. Certainly, few modern works equal it in brilliancy, melodiousness, and swiftness of dramatic action, which make its continuance as a favorite. The cast will include Mr. Ferrai-Fontana as Gennaro, Mme. Edvina Malinelli, Mme. D'Alvarez and Mr. Ferrai-Fontana; and local audiences are again given an opportunity to hear these incomparable artists in roles quite worthy of them. Mr. Andre-Caplet will direct.
