SABTURDAY APRIL 25, 1914.

IN CHARGE OF THIS ISSUE.

Editors: H. N. Stimson, '16; W. F. Johnson, '17.

Yesterday's communication has aroused a storm of protest from members of the Institute Committee, two of whom have replied in this issue. We accede to the criticism, not because all its statements would hold water, but because the effect of the whole seemed to be subsidiary. Its lack of construction we admit, but not therefore that it is without value. The writer, while he exaggerates the defects, points out serious faults of the Institute Committee in the undue influence exerted by one or two individuals, and its off-hand way of effecting the 1918 class officers. The annual joint banquet of the Architectural and Engineering Societies will be held on Friday evening, May 8th, at the Copp- ley Square Hotel. The principal speakers will be Mr. Adams, Cram, Supervising Architect of Princeton University and Past President of the Boston Society of Architects; and Mr. Stimson, Swann, '77, Professor of Civil Engineering in the Institute of Technology. Mr. Cram is also a Fellow of the American Institute of Architects and Mr. Swann was formerly the head of Course I at Technology. A competition has been opened to members of the two societies for a design for the center for the Tech College. The first Sophomore crew yesterday on the river, and each rowed a distance of four miles. Competition for places in the boats is very close and positions in first crews are still in doubt. All of the classes, with exception of the Sophomores, have elected captains for their crews.

COLLEGE NEWS

The Red Head Club at Illinois has received the official sanction of the Council of Administration and is now an established "activity" at the University. The object of this organization is "to promote good fellowship among the red heads at Illinois. The membership is limited to Juniors and Seniors. They are expected to pledge several Sophomores before the close of the club year. The pledge ribbon is a brilliant red." The club has petitioned the national organization of Red Heads, Phi Lambda Rho, for a charter.
