COMMUNICATION
To the Editor of THE TECH,

Dear Sir:

Two weeks from Friday night all our loyal Tech men will turn out to see a show selected by a committee as a show which will satisfy the tastes and ideals of the average Tech man. This committee, whoever they may be, have selected as the play supposed to satisfy these conditions, "The Passing Show," which someone has described as "the most undressed thing that they ever saw." If one cannot admire the taste they can certainly admire the brave conceit of those individuals who hold in so little esteem the high ideals of an educational institution. It is a fact that men are not judged by what they say but what they do, and a school as a whole is to be judged as lovers of the suggestive or non-obscene because of the fact that a few men endowed with the power to act have chosen thus for them. There is not a Tech man who is the least interested in his school who does not feel that he should go to TECH NIGHT and he is now given
